Recently, I compiled the mentor's views on current investments, and I'm sure everyone has a certain understanding of the current stock market trends. The Chinese government's recent large-scale stimulus policies in the capital markets have driven significant gains in A-shares and H-shares. The mentor, along with representatives from some international investment banks on Wall Street, also conducted on-site research in China. If everything goes well, the mentor will return next week and share his experiences and research findings from his trip to China.

If you already have a stock or crypto account, feel free to request trading strategies from us, and let's embrace a brighter future together! The mentor, one of Simon's top students and co-founder of Peak Hedge Strategies, has generated substantial profits for clients and achieved financial freedom through investing. Even after retirement, he remains passionate about the financial markets and deeply committed to charity work. Through his investment experience and life philosophy, he has helped many aspiring investors achieve success.

One of the main reasons the mentor founded AIT United Investors Community was to encourage more people to get involved in charity and give back to society. He also wanted to create a platform where all investment enthusiasts could exchange ideas and grow together. Here, you can not only learn professional investment knowledge but also help others who want to change their lives through investing realize their dreams. This is not just about commercial success, but the continuation of dreams and responsibilities.

Every investor who seeks to achieve their dreams needs a good mentor. And as a former hedge fund manager who has made billions through investing, with decades of experience, the mentor's insights are priceless. Are you really willing to miss out on next Monday's opportunity?

As shown in the chart, the Dow Jones daily candlestick chart has seen a slight rebound after testing the middle line of the Bollinger Bands. However, the MACD has already formed a death cross, suggesting that the market may continue to experience consolidation and technical corrections in this area. The recently released September seasonally adjusted non-farm payrolls data came in much stronger than expected, with 254,000 new jobs, far exceeding both the forecast and the previous numbers. This strong employment data supports continued interest rate cuts, giving the market a boost. As a result, many stocks opened higher in pre-market trading.

Regarding the current stock market strategy, the professor provided recommendations earlier this week. Investors should remain cautious with stocks that are trading at high levels, especially those whose third-quarter earnings might fall short of expectations, which could trigger a pullback. Instead, the focus should be on high-quality stocks that have already undergone corrections and are trading at lower levels. Recently, large tech stocks, particularly the "Big Seven," have shown weakness, a trend that may continue until after the third-quarter earnings reports are released.

Currently, Chinese concept stocks remain the hot focus of the market and have become popular targets for short-term trading. Keep a close eye on these opportunities, as they offer strong profit potential in the short term.

For many investors, stock selection can be a challenging task, especially in the realm of Chinese concept stocks. For this reason, we recently recommended YINN. Yesterday's 10% dip at the open presented an excellent short-term buying opportunity. Today, it opened nearly 10% higher, providing a great short-term profit opportunity. Short-term trading isn't Complicated — what matters is trusting your analysis and acting decisively when opportunities arise. However, many investors miss out on valuable profits due to hesitation. This is a common issue in investing. Opportunities are always there for those who are prepared and willing to take action, so seize every good chance the market presents!

Although Chinese stocks have long been undervalued by investors, many—including some institutions—underestimated the strength and determination of the Chinese government's support for the stock market. This is why so many short-sellers have incurred massive losses. When the Chinese government first introduced its stimulus policies, our mentor quickly traveled to China with representatives from several international investment banks on Wall Street for on-the-ground research, providing timely buy strategies for Chinese stocks.

I believe that next week, the mentor will share the latest findings from this research and provide the most up-to-date trading strategies. Stay tuned to our community group for updates — his deep insights and guidance will surely bring you new investment opportunities!

It's also worth noting that Bitcoin's movements are now highly correlated with U.S. stock indices. Despite Bitcoin's current bearish daily candlestick pattern, today's stock market rebound has helped lift BTC as well. The positive non-farm payroll data further strengthened the market's bullish sentiment. From a technical perspective, today's daily candle is expected to close in the green, making it a good strategy to buy the dip, with a short-term target of around $63,000.

Compared to stock trading mechanisms, the crypto market clearly has an advantage. The 24/7 trading model makes it more accessible. Earlier this week, the professor specifically called for shorting Bitcoin and advised crypto market investors to focus on swing trading; otherwise, they would miss out on substantial profits. As the daily candlestick technical indicators worsen, a short-term correction is expected to continue into the weekend. Investors who followed the short strategy on Monday are likely seeing significant profits now, highlighting the appeal of the crypto market.

Today is Friday, and Bitcoin is expected to see a rebound. However, this rebound will still present a good opportunity to short at higher levels, as the market's consolidation is likely to continue for some time. In this volatile market, capturing rebounds is important, but it's equally essential to be cautious of potential short-term pullbacks. Stay flexible, keep a close eye on market changes, and adjust strategies as needed.
